Wyreema Kelpie Stud.

Formerly The McMaster Stud.

Wyreema Kelpie Stud is the culmination of four generations of the McMaster families diligence in advancing the kelpie as the best suited dog for the Australian grazing industry.

Founded in 1882 by Gordon's Grandfather, John McMaster Jnr, 1882-1907, at the family headquarters, 'Croppa Station', Warialda, NSW.

Then Robert McMaster, 1906-1938, of 'Delungra', NSW.

Followed by Stanley McMaster, 1938-1964, of 'Wyreema' Warialda, NSW.

Presently Gordon McMaster, 1964, of 'Weir Park' Narrandera NSW.

Gordon has a visionary line breeding process, which continues to produce the finest working kelpies in the world. Why? simply put, the emphasis is on advancing the innate working characteristics of the breed. Thus further enhancing the McMaster principle of producing the ultimate dog for the discerning owner.

This principle is reinforced by an interesting statistic that appears on computer records, that is, over 75% of the top dogs in Australia have over 50% influence of Wyreema bloodlines in their DNA. Irrefutable proof of the sound logic behind this McMaster thinking.

In the 2009 Australia Day Honours Awards, Gordon received an OAM for services to the Australian Wool Industry & The Working Kelpie Sheep Dog Industry Worldwide.

Gordon also has work commitments, as a Sheep Classifier, Stud & Management Specialist, this takes him to New Zealand, WA and all Eastern states, as well as, from time to time, other parts of the world. This makes specialised dog training almost impossible, but all stud sires and stud bitches are broken into Station work before they are used for stud purposes by his associate trainer Brendan O'Conner.
